

The Nature at the Confluence Moving Toward Phase One Completion in South Beloit

The sign will have brackets welded at ESC and then move on to Beloit Body and Fender for painting.

This actually represents more than just a sign, it signifies the community coming together through donations and efforts of many local people and companies to make it happen. Pictured are Jeff Adams of B2020 and John Franks VP of Electrol Specialties.
